

UNITED STATES ARMY

Tuesday Eve

Hello Folks,

As usual I haven't much news but if you feel any ways near the same as I do you will be glad to just get a letter. I got your Sunday letter this evening.

I hope Richard is able to get on at Remij's for the summer and that he likes the work better than that at his fuzzy factory (this makes me think of Linda's fuzzy blankets - ha. ha!)

It looks like the inspector is really going into the bees right this summer. At least feeding his bees and buying more colonies makes it look suspiciously in that direction. I don't see any reason why there shouldn't be a good market for honey this year so I wish the bee business all the luck in the world. I know another thing too - that gardening at home will be a whole lot more pleasant than it has in the past.

Sunday will be Mother's Day and I certainly would like to be home for it. But since I can't I certainly want to wish my Mother a very happy Mother's Day. Even though I don't express it I certainly am thankful for all that mother has done and still is doing for me. Thanks a whole lot.

Richard wanted to know a little about the walkie-talkie business and by this time I may have explained what he wanted to know. At least I have talked about the broadcasting so now I'll tell you the purpose of ever having these dinky little radios.

a radio and its operator are assigned to each platoon and are taken right with it to its offensive or defensive area. Then since the company commander also has a radio, he and the platoon leaders can keep in touch with each other. Orders may be sent out, information of the enemy may be sent back or any other important communication may be made. When necessary a radio may be sent out with any smaller unit on patrol, outpost or any other duty.

I hope everything is still O.K. with you. Thanks a lot of times for the stamps.

Donald.
