Dear Folks,

Perhaps I'll get this letter written in time to go out on today's mail. But if I don't it'll go out tomorrow. It's almost eleven o'clock and it seems for the last couple of days sort of my slack time.
Everything is ready to go except the letters that are to be sent out today and it's hardly time to pick them up yet. Maybe I shouldn't talk so much about this mail job since it's only temporary. But it's the main subject on my mind now and of course topics of immediate interest always make something to talk about. If you really get this job learned once it's ^{actually} ~~really~~ not a very big job. Just learning the names of the people, and the addresses (or where to find them quickly) of people who are not. There is the biggest job.

31 May. 1968

This is sure a big waste of time and I am sure ashamed of myself for it. To be truthful it is almost exactly twenty-four later than when I started this. I'm going to bury this and be sure to get it off ^{day} tonight.
I'll do my best to make up for this by getting another one started before the day is over.

The reason why I didn't get more written yesterday is because everything is moving and we thought we were moving this morning. It was a longer trip to get the mail and I didn't get back till late and then it took all the rest of the evening to get everything rounded up to move. I think we'll wind up by moving tomorrow though. This is a short move this time but I'm pretty sure before very much longer we'll be (over) starting on our final move over here.

Oh yes. I got two letters from you yesterday evening. May 21 and 23. Pretty good eh? I hope my mail is coming through to you now. I've about decided why you had a period of not getting mails from me. There were almost two weeks the first of this month when I was on my Paris trip that I didn't get any mail written.

I'll try to answer your letters the next time I write. Hope things are still O.K. back there. Be good and God bless you.

Donald.
